RE-INCARNATION.

A Discourse by the Controls of J. J Morse, of London, Eng., delivered be-fore The First Society of Spiritualists, at Adelphi Hall, New York City, on Sunday Morning, April 28th, 1889, in Reply to the Following Question.

(Stenographically Reported by Miss H. M Maynard.)

Question-In your long and varied experience in the spirit world, have you ever seen a spirit that has been re-incarnated, or that has, in other words. inhabited two different bodies in this mundane sphere, and been known as two distinct individualities in time and space? Or have you seen a spirit that has seen a spirit that has been so re-incarnated? Or is the doctrine of the plurality of existences, in this or other worlds, which is taught in the east and believed by many Spiritualists, true, and if true, what is the probable object of these many incarnations?

Have we, in the whole course of our experience in the spirit life, seen any spirit who has lived two lives in two separate, distinct physical bodies, at different times in this world, an interval of death separating the two periods of physical existence? We would say to you that if it was in any way possible for us to consider this a possibility, by reason of personal prejudices, education and predelictions, we should certainly be more anxious to assert it to be true than otherwise. Brought up under the methods and teachings of Confucius, imbibing his doctrines, and knowing something of Buddhistic teachings, and, as a necessary consequence, retaining these ideas at death, you can readily understand that inspired by their teachings, that a plurality of existences was true-that there would be likely to be an hereditary bias in our mind in favor of the supposition; that we should start in the spirit life thoroughly imbued with the possibility, if not of the actuality, of these repeated appearances on the physical life.

we entered into spirit life it formed one of the first questions to which we directed our attention, after becoming settled in our new estate. For you can dlly understand that if this is true here can be no more important fact, not only as a fact, but as to the se ences flowing from it as a fact—as the influence it will have upon your nt life, and as to the conseque ving from this present life, reaching into the spiritual side, and making urn from there to here. And, therefore, assuming the questions abstractly instead of testing them objectively, it classified ing order, so to speak, and made life a long round of dances, a species of perto get new experience, be further developed, and again return to the spirit peated, and so on indefinitely, progress being accomplished in this somewhat roundabout fashion. by the old M. D.'s for their benefit. Dr. H. F. Crane, V. D., Vitapathic Physician, graduate of the American Health College, is practicing with great success in Bradford, Pa., and is taking the practice of the old M. D.'s, hence their wrath, so they combined to crush him, and raised money and employed counsel and had Dr. Crane summoned System—its instruments and processes of the practice, with College Charter of the State of Ohio, making all complete and invulnerable. The court and jury decided that Dr. Crane, and all Vitapathic physicians, have full State and United States rights to practice their profession without hindrance from State Medical laws. And this holds equally good in all States, as Vitapathy is founded on United States authority. For full account of proceedings see Bradford Sunday News, of June 9, 1889.

Therefore the rum power will do its est. Therefore we must do our best. South Dakota will do its best, or, perhaps, not its best, for no state has ever yet

But, when all is considered, South Dakota will do better than ever yet any state did. She will stretch every nerve, bend every energy, and, according to her ability, pour out her money. Already the money is coming, from counties and cities, towns and hamlets, churches and societies.

We request that pastors of all churches take collections for our aid on Sunday,

A MIRACLE.

Dr. A. B. Dobson Again.

If the following cure had been performed in Bible times, it certainly would have father and mother of the little girl to tell the story:

"Our little girl, twelve years old, had the diphtheria of a malignant type, and it left her in such a state that it affected her mind and spine, and she was in such a condition she could not talk, walk or feed herself. She was continually in motion; her hands, head and limbs could not be kept stili for a moment. We employed the best physicians and they could not do anything to relieve her, and advised us to send her to the university at Ann Arbor, Mich. As we were preparing to send her to that institute, a Mrs. Potter, of Albion, came to our house and gave us one of Dr. A. B. Dobson's circulars, stating he had cured her and she believed he could cure his address, and we wrote him many letters ourselves for the sick in this place, until his patients numbered hundreds, and many more wonderful cures were performed by him in this place.

We heard Dr. Dobson was going to visit Jackson, and we wrote and asked him if he would not call on us, for we did so much want to see the man who had saved the life of our little pet. He said he would. We procured the best suite of rooms at the Donnelly House, and told our friends that Dr. Dobson would be there on the 14th of November for two days. He came, and so did the sick; his rooms were full all the time of his stay. Over one hundred took his treatment. Our little Gertie met the doctor several times (she and we would naturally love the person that brought health to our child.) Whether this cure was done by spirit power we know not, but one thing we do know, that our little girl was terribly afflicted, unto death's door, and now she is as well as any member of our family, and her getting well has been the means of many more of this town sending to him and getting cured. If you have any doubts of the above facts, write to us or any responsible person of this place, and we will willingly answers your letters. J. C. KIMMEL. MARY KIMMEL."

Mr. Kimmel is a prominent clothing merchant, and he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian church, of Mason, County, Mich.

Hundreds of such cases as this Dr. Dobson and his Band are curing monthly, among them many old school physicians. -Maquoketa Record.

To the Readers of The Better Way.

Come, let us reason together and find a Better Way to organize the mental forces harmoniously and in accord with the law of truth and justice, individualized within each of us; which when brought in relative action constructs society. If the persons who form the leaders of any organic labor are upright, moral and unselfish, the aggregate, that form the association will be the same. Keep the head level and the body politic will move in order. Concentrate the mind on a given purpose, and action, as the result, must begin. Hold our ideals, and we shall have the pleasure of seeing them take form and become the real. The master builder labors untiringly through us all, to possess us with a better understanding. We will give the report verbatim as the gentleman wrote it down; he says: "The day was gloomy and very unpromising; it rained and stormed, with thunder and lightening at intervals, and had I not made the appointment to meet Mrs. L. at her house, I surely would not have attempted or expected a seance with so little promise of success. There was a long interval of silence after the sitting commenced before any power manifested itself. Finally the following communication appeared on the slate:

"Charles, I am here; I arrived just as you did."

Question: "Why did you not come with me?"

Answer: "I desired to see you start first, for I would have been fearfully disappointed if you had not. The children and myself have brought something for you. I have brought you 'lilies of the valley' of peace, moistened

Seated as Mrs. L. was, it was not possible for her to see any of the demonstrations, which she regretted very much. As before stated, the writing on the slate was interrupted by the demonstrations occurring under, at the side and the north end of the table, the furtherest from Mrs. L. THE PRYING CHIMNEY SWEEP, Charlie Miller was playing with his little sister May one day in the room, when suddenly they heard a slight noise in the chimney. "What was that?" asked Charlie, looking at May as if she ought to know

"I'll see," answered May in a whis-grate for a few moments, when her eyes began to assume a dreamy look.

Charlie watched her closely, because this gift of his sister always interested him greatly, she being not only able to see spirits in that state, but could see mortals in another room, or as they were approaching from without, and describe them accurately, even when all the doors were closed or a brick wall intervened. In fact she could see almost everything in this manner that had life in it, from a beetle or a mouse up to a horse. She was so extraordinarily clairvoyant, although but nine years old, that she could see even the spirit of objects or persons encased in matter, describing the appearance of the spirit of the rose or of a person, and thus could tell whether a mortal was bright or dark in spirit-trustworthy or untrustworthy. In the latter instances though she had to rely on the judgment of others, exhibiting timidity when a person was not to be trusted, or she would say, "Oh, mamma, he looks ugly inside," although the exterior betrayed only a good man.

So, whenever any extraordinary noise would occur in any part of the house, or something that was unlooked for, May would be asked to see, or put on her clairvoyant eyes for a minute, and could always solve the mystery correctly, and telling when the noise was made by a rat, a cat, a dog or a mouse, she being able to see through the thickest wall or into darkness, and could watch the proceeding.

On this occasion though it was neither a rat nor a mouse which made the noise, despite its coming from the chimney, but something with two legs.

A few moments after May had put on her clairvoyant eyes, according to Charlie's request, she whispered: "It's that old chimney sweep boy, who lives next door. He's climbed down our chimney for fun-just to see what we are doin' here. Because papa wouldn't let him play with you, he thinks he'll

By the time that Charlie bad the table in place and a chair placed before the table so as to be able to get up without difficulty, May had brought him the tin bucket which was balf full of water. This Charlie placed on the table very quietly and got up after it, May watching him with much interest. Then Charlie quietly took the tin cover from the stove pipe hole above the mantel piece and laid it on one side. During all this time the chimney sweep boy was very quiet too. He must have heard someone in the room and got frightened himself, thinking he would be detected. But this did not induce any change of purpose in Charlie. He cautiously lifted the bucket up to the hole in the wall, placed the spout into the hole itself, and then began pouring the water into it. Suddenly there was a scrambling inside, and someone saying. "Spew! spew! spew!— jeminy! jeminy! what's dat? what's Charlie and May could stand it no longer and burst out into a merry laughter. At this the boy must have realized his situation, and either realized his situation, and either their own homes around a stand with ashamed of being caught or afraid that hands placed thereon, and their minds the white elephant ranks high. The Burmese believe that the spirits of kings inhabit the bodies of these creatures. King Thebaw, of Rangoon, had several, which he treated like lords, even to building them a palace of their own. When they went out they had noie. They never were disturbed by any more prying chimney sweeps after that; for boys don't like an unexpected bath, and always serves as a lesson never to be forgotten. The parents had not our sweet knowledge of life after the change so wrongly called death, for they were people who do not believe our loved ones can return to us in spirit. The reason they do not is because they have never sought to know. If they had gone to some good and honest medium, gone with an honest desire to know if it were possible for spirits to return and communicate with mortals, they would have received this blessed truth from the angels. But when she appealed to me in such heart-broken words my lips unclosed almost before I knew it, and I said, "Oh, if you only knew as I do that your baby will not be dead;" and e'er I could say more she said, "What! Spiritualism?" "Yes," I said. "Oh, I my lips were closed again. A week after the baby went to its angel home this mother came to see me, and all her talk was about her lost baby; she missed it so everywhere. It was a pretty baby and just beginning to step and lisp "papa," "mamma." I could not refrain from speaking of spirit return again. I said, "Mrs. Meeks, your baby has not left your life and home altogether, and it would be glad to have you know this fact." Then she told me that she had been sitting alone reading, but her whole soul hungering for her darling, when she heard a slight noise, and, looking up, seemed to see a vapory cloud ascending above her head. She said, "I thought it might be my baby."

So we talked, and at last she said, "I think it would be a sweet belief, and would like to know if true." I told her I would let her know when next Mrs. Phillips, a good and grand medium, came, and would be pleased to have herself and husband attend a parlor seance. She said she would be glad to do so. Well, I let her know, but they sent excuses, as many another person, afraid to think for themselves, has done in like cases.

But I must tell you of the baby spirit coming to me. A lady and myself were alone and sitting at my spirit table. (I had it made for this use, but I ble. (I had it made for this use, but I sit at it to write also,) and presently I felt that a spirit was taking control of my person. Then I—yet not I but this dear baby—began to cry plaintively and lisp, "Papa, Mamma, Chasie," This last was the baby's name when in its parent's home, and these I suppose were all the words it had said. It repeated these names over and over and cried low. The lady who was sitting with me talked to baby Chasie, and to silence its crying she got up and gave see our house by climbin' down our chimney."

Charlie smiled a mischievous smile when May had finished, and then whispered. "Never mind, we'll fix cooed. The next I knew she took me ing in baby language. Then she pulled my slipper off, child like, and rocked it.

After a time she left off controling me, and I confess I felt small sitting thus; but the baby felt better, and the woman and I understood that even lit-tle baby spirits loved to manifest their presence and let mortals know they have not died only to the body. Just had changed one body for a more beautiful one that would not be sick or suf-fer pain again, but it still loved its par-ents. How I longed to tell them of this control, but I felt that they would not believe me or understand why it came to me when unable to make presence known in their own home. So many people do not stop to reason that they do not make the proper conditions, and all God's laws are governed by conditions. The little flower seed would not sprout and grow unless we placed it in dist and grow it supports placed it in dirt and gave it sun and water-conditions-and the sweet singing birds would not be with us long if the old birds did not sit on their eggs and keep them warm-make proper conditions for them to hatch. But if those who desire to receive this truth would seek a good medium or sit in quiet and reaching out for truth, these dear angels or spirit friends would come and develop them so they could use them as mediums to convey the knowl edge of their presence. People do not use their own reason enough. Learn to do much thinking for yourselves, dear little friends, and when I write for you I will try to make these things plain to your understanding. Have I

An Ex-Clergyman Confesses. To the Editor of The Better Way.

Dear Sir and Brother:-By advice of Dr. S. T. Suddick, I take the liberty to write you a few lines about myself, (not for publication except as far as you see fit.)

For many years a minister of the orthodox faith, of the strictest sect I have been unsparing in denouncing Spiritualism and all except my own ism everywhere. The more I studied human nature and man's immortal destiny, the more my deep-rooted dogmatism was shaken, until I was compelled to combat the very doctrines I first indorsed, thus of course antagonizing the fathers of the church, until, scorning to teach others what I myself doubted, I withdrew from the ministry. Illhealth and trouble in business caused me to leave New England, the scene of me to leave New Eugland, the scene of my first labor, and come to Missouri. Here, while "drifting" theologically, I was induced by Dr. Suddick to attend a seance, where I was at first astonished, then convinced. Following my life course, I at once began to publicly support what my heart believed, which of course resulted in social ostracism here. Now I want to go before the public to support what I formerly denounced. Unknown to influential Spiritualists and condemned by old friends, I have no way except by the help of others to carry out my desires. I feel especially competent to combat the arguments of orthodoxy, as I myself have for years been a teacher thereof.

Will you kindly insert my name in the B. W. as a platform lecturer, with any editorial comment you please? I will state that I am a thorough classical scholar, being a graduate of Heidelcan certify to my character and an also of the officials or citizens of this county. Hoping you will pardon this letter, I remain yours fraternally, REV. JAMES DEBUCHANANNE, PH. D.

Mediumship is a law of nature.

Perverted Christianity: Orthodoxy.

Teach truth and error will fall by itself. Spiritualism demonstrates the existence of the soul by facts.

If Spiritualism is a law, why need we fear opposition.

Vain and selfish people need constant regaling to be kept in good humor.

Would bibles be regarded as obscene literature if sent through the mails?

The honest open hearted and outspoken individual with all his mistakes and slips of the tougue is a far preferable companion to the one who weighs every word he utters for fear of committing himself.

For a man with two thousand dollars salary to reproach one with half this sum for not laying aside as much in a year as he does or can, is fault-finding with a vim. Blind prejudice or the lack of love is mostly the incentive to such emotion.

At the Johnstown disaster an image in one of the churches escaped destruction which is regarded by many orthodox Christians as a divine preservation. It would be more so if the people who were in the church at the time had been pre served.

As the God of superstition and the Christ of sentimentality lose their grip on the people; the latter leave the churches; and named idols, it will lose its grip on the few adherents that are left.

Do not hold on to opinions or ideas of the past, whether your own or anybody else's. As soon as you do that you come to a standstill, and it takes but a few years of mental inactivity to place you in the category of old fogies. Constant development and progress needs a constant creation of new thoughts and ideas.

Should such be worthy of any attention from respectable Spiritualists? Should such have our patronage? Emphatically no; and the sooner our people will be respected. But as long as they will permit their good nature to put on a who are obliged to accept or submit to anything. We do not advocate combativeness or invectiveness, but a dignified and respectful silence; and when insulted resort to a magistrate for redress.

JURYMEN'S DUTIES.

An exchange thinks that jurymen ought to be prosecuted for perjury for acquitting a prisoner whom they know to be guilty by the evidence given in court. The question involved here, it seems to us, is first, What is a juryman's duty? Secondly, is he compelled by law to render a verdict in conformity with the proofs of guilt as given on the witness stand? If the latter, why have a jury at all? Why not simply read the law to the culprit and punish him accordingly? But if a jury is intended to represent the voice of the people, why not prosecute the whole community from which that jury was selected for perjury as well? Then again, we believe, no evidence is accepted on hearsay. What other evidence has a juryman but this? Can he conscientiously render a verdict of "guilty" when he knows no more about the case in hand than what he has heard render a verdict of "guilty", why not let the jury be composed of persons who know of the prisoner's guilt? Then it will not conflict with their conscience nor with the law, and they will know what to expect in the event of rendering a verdict not in accordance with the facts. But this again makes the law sufficient without the need of a jury. Thus why a jury if their verdict is to be questioned, or they are to be subjected to punishment themselves? Might as well arrest a man and say he must find the prisoner guilty or go to jail in his place. If jurymen are liable to prosecution for acquitting a prisoner on hearsay evidence, the jury system might as well be abolished, for such constitutes Flowers are the language of the unseen no jury in the real sense. It has outlived thing superior to a jury is needed to judge a fellow man. What shall it be? Can anyone suggest a substitute?

HOW TO SUPPRESS CRIME.

To read of the many hideous crimes and outrages that are being enacted all over the civilized world indicates that morality or spirituality is at a low ebb indeed; and in the face of this orthodoxy is endeavoring to put down Spiritualism, the only hope existing of a betterment of the human race. Neither the church nor the state is enabled to suppress crime however much they may try. People will not re- part in a tirade or warfare against Spiritform on a mere promise of a future life or ualism is concerned. future rewards. They have come to the conclusion that such do not exist, and therefore do not fear any future consequences. Convince the people by absolute fact that they will live after this, or that they are being watched by their loved ones on the other side, and they will restrict their actions, their thoughts, their emotions. But tell them that Spiritualism is false, and they will continue to disbelieve in a future existence. With such a notion they will not make any prologues to curb their passions and will continue to seek victims to fleece, everyone of course expecting to escape detection or legal punishment; and it is safe to say that the majority do escape; for who can see into the private houses and in the hearts of those who are living criminal lives, but the spirif the church does not soon substitute some its of the departed, and who, if acknowlphenomenal facts in place of the above edged by common law, would bring to light much that is in the dark. To say, bring up your spirits etc., will not do; for the spirits will not be brought up in that way. They have a will of their own and are not subservient to either judge, jury or mediums, but demand the latter to become subservient to them before they will act in the matter. Seek and ye shall find. Come in an humble way to the spirits and the y will respond to your wishes, but not before. The sooner the world therefore announces this fact officially, the sooner nonbelievers in a future life will be brought to do so for others at some other period. to a halt in committing crimes. Whether It is the law of compensation. Parents done by the church or state, is indifferent. But the first will be the most benefitted neither serve Christianity nor Spiritualism -taking for granted that by the senses is come without invitation-are delighted to meant our exterior consciousness which we acquire through the agency of sight, scent, touch etc. But Christ knew that man posessed higher faculties for the comprehension of things unseen, or for the requiring of knowledge unperceived by this exterior consciousness, and thus taught things, and our faith is intuition. Let it faith-meaning that man should believe that which he intuitively felt or sensed to be true. To give a scientific demonstrafor us? Does the daily press ever say any- tion of intuition in those days would have been simply impossible. Either he could not or he knew it would be useless to try, and so he taught faith as a thing needed as he feels inclined, or give it insulting for spiritual progress. Faith is simply truth felt intuitively, and Spiritualists know that intuition is a soul qualification possessed by almost all human beings, only that its effects were not made clear until the spirit world opened its gates to man. Now we know when we are acted upon come to this conclusion the sooner they by a foreign intelligence or the entity of spirit, and thus enabled to distinguish our own thoughts from those that are impressbland expression when twittingly quizzed ed on us. Following our intuitions or they will be regarded as a weak people impressions is faith, only that instead of believing we know that we are right. And to wait until our exterior senses prove to us what we should do, would cause the loss of many golden opportunities in this life. We cannot avoid railroad accidents by trusting to our senses; but those who are in spirit communion or who understand intuitive warnings can never go astray if they follow out their impressions, i. e. have faith enough in these warnings to abide by them. A true Christian has this faith, whether he credits God or Christ or the saints with being the inspirers. And one who posesses this faith will also believe or follow the teachings of his religion. We cannot but love and respect such an individual, for we know he is what he professes. Man is what he thinks or enacts-what he feels towards others; and as Christ said, "Love ye one another' we have no fear of the true Christian. "Render unto Caesar" showed his broad liberality, even amidst strife and contention. "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone" gives a practical example of his charity-this sublime Christian virtue, and still boasted of as the guiding star of Christianity.

INTUITION VS. FAITH.

The philosophy that nothing should be asserted of man until after having acquired

The opposition of a few orthodox preachers cannot effect us. The majority of the people are courting us for all that, and one by one the Christian cherries are falling into the lap of Spiritualism. Thus our friendly feeling towards Christianity. The truly spiritual minded are seekers after truth, and make the most liberal Spiritualists when once converted, and it requires very little effort to convert such; while a hard-headed orthodox convert generally becomes a reviler of the church and everything that has a Christian hue, and keeps us constantly in hot water trying to protect and excuse him. Let such remain with the church until they have outgrown their swaddling clothes, for the preachers cannot live without a congregation and should be provided for also. Then again, we must not comdemn the whole because there are a few among them who like to float on a popular wave. Let them sail; the higher they rise, the sooner they will be swallowed up by that wave. There are many good and true ministers in the church, who are doing a world of good, and who never think of finding fault with others belief, and who are ever ready to respond to the call of known Spiritualists, whatever the cause. For their sake alone we should be lenient and extend to our combatants that charity which the aforenamed are extending to us by their silence and inactivity as far as taking any

Many Spiritualists already intuitively feel that this is the most judicious plan to follow in this, only apparently great opposition, and intuitively know that the whole is but a flash in the pan, a bubble, (and we doubt not but what it is gotten up by the spirit world to stir and wake up the Spiritualists a little) which will soon be forgotten again-and that is all about it. If those who have this intuitive comfort will but permit themselves to be guided by it, progress will be without interferenceand we know they all have; for the most excited ones will in-midst the heat of batle say, "oh, they can't hurt us in the end!" Then why worry? Such have the intuitive sense that they are safe, but-well, you know, "we like to get a lick at 'em, anyhow!"-Such is letting that little bump of combativeness govern their intuitions, as some Christians allow their vanity or love for popular applause to govern their faith. If theirs is the only true road to heaven, why fear the encroachment of Spiritualism? Is Christ not the same to-day as formerly? If he is the Son of God, he ought to possess the power to put down Spiritualism-except the preachers are taking up the cudgel for him. But if it be true that he taught all the above beautiful lessons, he cannot be cruel enough to wish to make anybody unhappy or have his name used in calling honest people frauds. As man thinks or speaks, so he is; and if Jesus was not in fact what he taught he was no messiah. If the church will admit this it must also admit that its doctrines are false. If not, then why not practice what it professes to be? Shall Spiritualists

Shall Spiritualists teach the church what Christianity is? This is not cant; for we are as frank with our own people. We cerning the exhibition of our phenomena? a certainty of it by the aid of the senses, will are as ready to expose their own little faults as well as those of orthodoxy; and because we desire to see Spiritualists set an example that the world cannot imitate without becoming better. Not an example of faith alone, but of deeds-of both in combination. Faith without works is naught. Our works are charity, benevolence, humanity and temperance in all guide us.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE? What we will need on the other side of life for progress is spiritual strength-the power of locomotion, of comprehending our surroundings, and of sensing the needs, desires and tastes of others. Without the first-named we will be but figures or statues, many hardly able to propel themselves along without mortal help or attaching themselves to some human being in order to obtain a glimpse of other surroundings besides those which they are individually attracted to by the law of nature, or which reflects itself on their own specific aura and in accord with their own specific condition-dark, dreary or doleful according to circumstances or according to the lives they have led on earth. Individual power of locomotion is dependent upon the amount of will we possess-the power over self, over animal or material nature, over our passions and of resisting temptation. Giving way to anger, prejudice, revenge, etc., only weakens instead of strengthening our spiritual nature; and it is this form of will-this form of spiritual strength that will be needed with which to roam the spirit world when we lay off this mortal coil. It is the soul strength spoken of by weak spirits as that which they most desire, such feeling their inability to move about at will and often wonder what the cause of their weakness is. Spiritualists as a rule instinctively know this and therefore try to curb their temper in all affairs of life-even to becoming indifferent to opposition for fear of losing ground spiritually. But all this can be averted if they will only think twice before they speak. This is already an effort to curb the material or exterior being and every such effort adds force to the spiritual or interior life. As the latter increases in strength, the powers of comprehension become active or lucid, and not only open the soul to thoughts necessary for reply in a war of words, but for comprehending the the causes of things-all to the soul's advantage in both material and spiritual affairs. Without this the spirit is discontent; it wishes to know its condition-its own nature; thus self study becomes a most nec essary proceeding; for through a knowledge of self, man learns the nature of causes. Sensing the needs, desires and tastes of others is sympathy. Without sympathy there is no absolutely soul-felt happiness. This action of the inner consciousness is developed through consideration and commiseration for our fellow beings through charity and benevolence, forgiveness and well-wishing generally. For as we come en rapport with our fellow spirits we sense whatever love there is in them Sensing this is to be happy. But making self the first consideration constantly reverses this soul action, and when we try to feel for others or love them, it cannot operate for this (a positive) effect. No response is perceived and we imagine the world is cold, uninviting, unsympathetic, attributing the fault to others, when it is within ourselves. No being is without the God-spark, and those who have love will sense it in others when they so will it. It is the accord with this interior life principle in man which makes the happiness of both the present and the future. We may be as selfish as we please and consequently the most unhappy of creatures, yet the one whose love condition is active will be able to penetrate our aura and find the God-spark nevertheless. But those who are selfish cannot penetrate to the soul of even the most loving--whose exterior aura is all love-because they lack the qualification or gift for so doing. To sympathize with the suffering and despite this possess it know naught of trouble. They are already in heaven, while yet in the body, and for them there is no purgatory on the other side. Death to such is a pleasure; a gentle slumbering only to realize that they are in a better world and one in which material influences have no further control over them. Such awakening awaits him who loves his fellow man more than self, whether he be a Spiritualist, Christian, Mahommedan, Buddhist, Fire-worshipper But as Spiritualists have the only positive evidence of a future life, they know that their endeavors are not in vain and thus; als that they may impose on themselves, while others have only the hope of a future life and are therefore frequently tempted fail to be successful. to give up the race for happiness and indulge the material. What gratification Spiritualists should gather from this knowledge and not only live accordingly, but be grateful enough to forgive those who are in the dark concerning the future, and in their despair do things that they would not do had they the certainty of a future life that Spiritualists have. Shall we show the way to happiness by living in accord with our teachings, or do as the world does and squabble over trifles? Further comment is show the church what a true Christian is? | unnecessary; we leave it to our readers.

WHAT IS GOD? Of God, Pythagoras 586 B. C. said: There is one universal Soul, diffused lish them because one will answer 6through all things,-eternal, invisible, unchangeable; in essence like truth, in substance resembling light; not to be represented by any image, to be comprehended Spiritualism says, God is life, simply, and this life principle that pervades the universe is intelligent, or constitutes intelligence -whatever that is, or however defined. If intelligent or intelligence, it must be cognizant of all that exists, and particularly so of that which manifests intelligence, we as a microcosm of the original. also being more conscious of that which partakes of our own nature than of that which is foreign to us-comprehending intelligence better than we do mere instinct. So God, the Great First Cause, must be conscious of man's actions, thoughts, emotions, sensations, and whatever other principles, he possesses that bespeak of the one fundamental principle or attribute, intelligence. But being infinite, God comprehends all conditions of life, even if he, she or it is all intelligence in esse or orig-

Theology accepts our God in so far as the latter is concerned, i. e. in being omnicient; but makes a personality of him and places him in a fixed position. How they can harmonize the two, without constricting the spirit world, is difficult to determine mathematically. And to believe that the omnicient God recognizes only those calling themselves Christians is either to have a very narrow conception of God, or Christians are a very selfish people in not wishing to share their God with the world's people. If God is the first cause, he must have created all mankind, and every human being living has an equal claim on him-except he is whimsical or changeable in character and has renounced a portion (the majority) of mankind. Under those circumstances he is not great, for even a poor mortal, who is environed by adverse circumstances, is regarded with disfavor, when he is forced to change his opinion a little for the sake of his daily bread. And a God that is changeable is not all-powerful-cannot be, I have just read a reply to a promine for such is not spiritual. Spirit or soul is physician as to what shall be done win absolute-omnipotent, and only as such can mediums who practice fraud. Your as it control matter or that condition of life. Now, God, even according to the theological conception, must either control all matter or none. If the former he is not a personality and knows no condition, caste in nine cases out of ten the so-called judge or creed; and if the latter, he is simply a spirit of limited range and deserves no more recognition than any other spirit well known as a Spiritualist (?) told the that manifests to man, and this according story that (the writer, myself,) had asked to his mode or manner in which he addresses us. The higher spirits to-day their names were. As soon as I heard of come with an influence of love-and mediums are readily enabled to distinguish the higher ones from the lower ones by their influences-while the lower ones ex- my guide said before the test seance that hibit more or less arrogance in addressing as I had been accused of fraud, he would mortals, and sandwich their messages with expressions as "oh, ye mortals," "oh, man," "repent, ye sinners," and so forth told me that as that lady was a wealth ad nauseum. Now, if higher spirits al- one, a prominent one also, to take to be ready modify their language to man, how much more gentle and loving should God, that woman confessed that she lied ab the Most High spirit, speak to man. So me, and that I never did ask for name, far, we have had no direct message from him, and probably never will in the sense that such is understood. And yet we all hear from him. He speaks to all by intuition; he manifests to everyone through what is termed conscience, and we all feel him as that which is known as happiness; for he dwells within every soul as love.

EXPOSES-ALLIANCES.

Supposing Spiritualists were to form an alliance with clergymen, who have been deposed for wrong doing towards the church, with a view of having them expose other clergymen to make the world believe that all were frauds, what would respectable Christians and honest ministers think of it? They would put those engaged in such practice, on the same level with the culprit, and either ignore them entirely or have supreme contempt for them. What should Spiritualists do when Christians to feel happy is a divine gift. Those who form an alliance with mediums who have been deposed for wrong doing towards Spiritualism? Can the assertions of a deposed minister affect true Christianity, or those of a deposed medium affect true Spiritualism?

Orthodox or radical Christianity is trying to uproot Spiritualism, while radical (orthodox?) Spiritualists are making efforts to break down Christianity. Neither will succeed, for both have missions to perform. Atheist, Materialist, or even an Orthodox. True Christianity and true Spiritualism are based on love, but radicalism perverted the former and will pervert Spiritualism if permitted to control the movement. Exneed not regret any sacrifices or self-deni- tremes are always the effects of prejudice, while conservatism boldly advocates its cause with charity for all and thus cannot

> If Spiritualism is true-and it is-why trouble ourselves about its antagonists? They will tire of this finally if not noticed. Let us continue the good work of trying to make men happy, and of teaching man his duties toward himself and his fellow man. We can do but one thing at a time and do it properly. To quarrel with our neighbors we must neglect our own household, followed by a thinning out of auditors. The conservative element are in the majority and want light, and without their support social Spiritualism is naught.

Although receiving two or three co mentary letters every day, we do not a many, the verdict being somewhat unani. mous. But occasionally one arrives which eontains something not yet expressed, and such only we publish. The following is only by the mind; not as some conjecture, exterior to the world, but, in himself, energy enterior to the world enterior to the eral knowledge, so personalities are a pleaant omission; we are seeking new ideas, w theories are an interesting and profitable divergence, and as we are trying to be consistently charitable, a paper edited that spirit is a most satisfactory object teacher.

> One thing is certain, and that is, that as long as mediums will make no discriming tion as to who is to be admitted to their circles, there is going to be trouble and contention with the materialistic and orthodox worlds. There are certain minds that cannot grasp the spiritual-that cannot and will not be convinced on any evidence. When the phenomena reaches beyond their "explanation," they call it "puzzling," but positively believe and affirm that it is trickery nevertheless and the even the most honest Spiritualist is bei deceived by the wily medium. there is no compromising, and it is best to let them die unconvinced. As spirits on will they ever become convinced the there are spirits in existence.

If a few errors should be over looked in the proof reading, we hope the reader will excuse them. We are not the only calprits, but have "lots o' company" in the respect. In the bustle to be "on time" and not disappoint our readers to receive their paper when on the lookout for it, we are apt to overlook, not only errors in our contributor's proof but even in our own; for besides having almost a page of editorial matter to furnish for our patrons each week, we have the exchanges to peruse, all the manuscripts to edit, proofs to read an occasional business and personal letters to answer for the benefit of the cause and the paper. So our readers will see that it is not negligence on our part but because we are only mortal and struggling against time and circumstances.

"What Shall Be Done with Mediums To the Editor of The Better Way.

In THE BETTER WAY of June 1st, 1884 swer is common sense; your answer's justice; your answer is right. Many socalled Spiritualists set men up as judges of mediums as to just what they shall do, and proves the fraud. Now, a little time ago, a certain woman her to tell me who was dead; also what it I said-nothing, as it was about a half hour before my lecture and test seance on Sunday evening. My guides said wait, as nobody believed it. So, after the lecture, prove that I was not, and he did pr that I was not a fraud. So, on Monday morning I went to a lawyer about it, wh house the parties who told me that she said that I was a fraud, and I did so, and dates or about anybody that was dead; but that she was mad because I would not give her a free sitting, and so said that we she might have revenge. Now, had the members of that society believed that I might have been expo and people would have believed it as a fact. Now let me say that I try to be fact. Now let me say that I try to te honest in all my mediumship, and shall try till death shall come. So long as I know I am right and my spirit guides approve of what I do, I shall do it regardles of what may be said. I do not fear what may be said about myself or guides. If is necessary for me to fight, I will till the end. The trouble is, if they can't contro a medium and guides, then they are frauds. They will lie and do everything they can So far as I am concerned, let them about me; but if there is a law in the land the shall prove it. I know there is a law of compensation for me for every wrong at and deed. Now, why I write this to you telling what I have, I hardly know. Perhaps it is right to do so.

But I must commend your answer t that question. The sitters are not a frauds, but the sensitive medium must ge both good and evil from all sitters wh come. Let me thank you, Mr. Editor, so your justice toward all mediums. I am the same as ever wishing you the best of success.

All honest and earnest seek. ers after truth are cordially welcome.

Very respectfully,

MRS. V. R. MUMFORD, Sec'y.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

We delivered two addresses to well-filled houses here last week. Our theme was "The Bible and its Influence on the Ages of the Past," and "Spiritual and Physical Evolution," both of which were enthusiastically received and resulted in a vote of thanks from the audience. Dr. W. B. Mills gave a good unmber of tests that were acknowledged. We are now filling our third month's engagement for the first Society of Spiritualists of Saratoga, and may infer from that we have given satisfaction.

Marengo, O.

The Spiritualists of central Ohio will hold their annual grove meeting, Sunday, June 30th, at Well's Lake, two miles south-east of Marengo. D. M. King and Mrs. Myra F. Paine have been engaged for the occasion.
Marengo is thirty five miles north of Columbus, on the line of the Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad. A full attendance of the Spiritualists of central Ohio is desired, as an attempt will be made to organize an association for the purpose of holding yearly meetings. Parties from a distance will find excellent hotel accommodations.

The Spiritual Alliance are holding meetings regularly in the Church on Mancota street, between Eighth and Ninth, on Sunday evenings, with Mrs. Aldrich as our speaker. For the present we are listening to answers to questions from the audience, and swers to questions from the audience, and think the interest is increasing; for in this we are calling out the prevailing thought and receiving a great deal of information in reference to life beyond the grave, on kindred subjects. The meetings are enlivened by spiritual music, and closed with psychometric readings. Mrs. Aldrich appears to be the right person for this society.

At a recent gathering of the Mutual Aid Association, No. 1, whose membership now exceeds five hundred, Mr. Henry P. Mrs. A. M. Glading delivered a lecture at Lenape Hall last Friday evening to a goodsized audience. Mr. Samuel Wheeler, of Philadelphia, acted as chairman and stated the reason of the lecture-it being given in ald of the Johntown sufferers. Asking for a topic from the audience "charity" was suggested as the most appropriate for the occasion. In flowery sentenences the beauties of charity were depicted and the speaker was greeted with applause at the close.

To the question "How can we obtain true happiness?" Mrs. Glading promptly responded and became especially eloquent. After answering another question, Mr. N. C. James moved that a vote of thanks be tendered the speaker, which motion was heartly seconded. Much satisfaction was manifested by all who attended the lecture. Besides the 878 taken in at the door, $19 were collected inside, which amount will be added to the relief fund for the aid of the distressed at Johnstown.

"A Minister's son" writes in the Washington (D. C.) National View;"

"During the past season at Washington, crowded audiences have filled the largest halls to hear inspirational lectures, Sunday morning having been devoted to answering question in writing from the audience regarding our future heavenly homes. These proved highly educational and have added much knowledge to our faith. These dear friends, so anxious for our welfare, all agree in saying that if we will encourage them by right living they will come very near and impress and help us in many ways with valuable suggestions as we pursue our weary way up the steep hill of progress. After the lecture Miss Maggie Gaulle, who has a rare faculty of "discerning spirits" as among other gifts mentioned in the 12th chapter of Corinthians, for many weeks bas given great satisfaction to hundreds of people by describing and giving names of friends whom they had supposed were far away, often relating two events unknown to others and with tears of joy, declared that the comfort thus given was nearly equal to a personal visit from the dear departed. These pentecostal scenes and good influences of the Holy Spirit, so common in the early apostolic church, should be duplicated in our time to aid the good results expected from the deliberations of the conference for all religions called to meet this year. It is estimated that at least one quarter of the people of the United States aiready endorse this comforting gospel of the early church and regard it as God's way of saving the world, which is in reality a true science and philosophy as well as a religion. Let all the clergy become awakened and follow many of their wise and far seeing brethren, who already discern the signs of the times, and soon the "Golden Rule" and clear explanation—"the sermon on the mount," will become the only creed, as it is the only foundation of all true and practical religion. This state of harmony must precede the long-prayed-for millenial era, which it will rapidly usher in." comfort thus given was nearly equal to a

At the regular meeting of The Society for the advance of Scientific Spiritualism, Sunday, June 9th, Prof. H. Day Gould delivered a lecture entitled "Random Shots," it being the closing one of his course of five lectures upon Spiritualism and Modern Science." It was opened by the following invocation:

Infinite Father, to Thee we aspire, Thou knoweth our wants and our heart's desire-desire—

Peace and joy and a life of love
Here we would live as with angels above,
While strong for the right,
Let us not delight
In contention and strife,
And a turbulent life.
But with peaceful manner, though firm command.

May we lead with a strong but gentle hand.

Trusting in Thee and Thy law of right

Trusting in Thee and Thy law of right For compensation's eternal might. The works of injustice to overthrow, We look for the seed we sow.

Develop Thy plan
Thy creature, man,
And in Harmony, we Would Thy servant be,
In overcoming ignorance, called sin,
And thus the victory o'er evil win.

All nature is a poem in thy praise,
All life a song of love in lyric lays,
All labor true is worship of Thy ways,
All thought Thy Spirit prompts through endless days.

Concerning the lecture itself the Plain Dealer of the following day said: "The introduction treated of the character of truth. It is eternal. It is not subject to change on account of man's belief. For all the world to believe does not make a thing any more true, and for all to disbelieve does not make it less true. Then he quoted the passages regarding Christ coming to save the world, and "He that believeth shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." Christ can save no man except he believe went the argument. But if none believed, as might be the case, then all would be damned, asequently where is the truth of the propoition that Christ is the savior of the world? To make truth depend upon men's belief or disbelief is to make it such an uncertain quantity that it can no longer be an object of knowledge. Then followed abstract discussion upon the laws of evidence and vital functions, proving the existence of spiritual life."

In the morning Mrs. Nellie J. T. Brigham ectured upon the following subjects given by the audience: "When there are so many spirits taken out of the body at once as in the present flood, what effect does it have in the spirit world?" "Is there any thing in "stellar science" or the ancient astrology, or do the stars influence our destiny? if so can you explain the influences?" "What is the opinion from the spirit side of the great increase sulcides?" "Can all spirits come back or return if they wish?" "The Spirit world," "In the next world is there a punishment for the misdeeds in this life? If so what is the punment? and is it imposed by a personal God?" "What is Spiritualism?" Subjects for poems: "The wheel within a wheel." The flowers of

In answering the first question the speaker said: When the spirits perceived what was coming the news spread through the spirit world, and they tried to warn the people; a few listened and responded to the warning, but the multitude paid no heed, so when the floods came a vast cloud of spirits hovered over the valley, and as the spirits left the bodies they were welcomed and received and your sweet humane charities help to find the heart of bitterness. Those who sing, who work, and even those with quick responding hearts, who play for the relief of the living, are all deserving of praise.

At the meeting in the afternoon Mr. Henry J. Newton gave his experience, extending over many years, investigating the phenomena of Spiritualism in its different phases, from the little rap up to the more important phenomena, until the grand phase of full form materialization was reached, and closed by giving a full detailed description of the wonderful manifestations recently had through the mediumship of Mrs. Etta Roberts, while sitting for a committee under crude test conditions. And smong other things he said concerning these seances, he remarked that I have been trying to have a pair of wooden rings put together by different mediums, but all had failed until last Thursday evening, when Mrs. Roberts' controlling spirit put them together in my sight. We understand that these test seances have closed until after the summer vacation is over, when they will be resumed again. A report of the Committee will be given to the public in a short time. Mrs. A. C. Henderson gave a large number of psychometrical readings that were very satisfactory to the recipients. over many years, investigating the pherecipients.

In the evening Mrs. Brigham spoke upon "The rich in spirit." Next Sunday Mrs. Brigham will lecture morning and evening, and address the meeting for spirit manifestations in the afternoon, and this will be the last meeting of the Society until after the summer vacation.

Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., the society have their annual strawberry festival at Adelphi Hall. There will be music, recitation, tests, etc., and a merry social time. Admission 25 cents, which will include strawberries and cream.

The Arcanum Hall meetings of the Progressive Spiritualists, 57 West Twenty-Fifth Street, of 9th inst., brought together fair audiences at each session. At the 3 p. m. service Prof. Van Horn spoke on "Proofs of Spirit Return," which was well received.

Mrs. Harriet E. Beach interested the audience in an able manner with her many experiences, etc. Other mediums took part in phenomenal exercises. "The influences of spirit voices," was the conductor's evening subject at 8 p. m., which was given inspirationally. The audience listened attentively and appreciated its many facts in relation to spirit phenomena.

Prof. Van Horn gave scores of demonstrative tests in spirit messages at each session, fully acknowledged by each person receiving The above meetings will close on June 30th

St. Louis, Mo. The first Association of Spiritualists hold their regular weekly meetings in Brant's

Hall, corner Ninth and Franklin avenue. On last Sunday a large and appreciative audience greeted Mrs. Davis, a lady from Chicago, who gave an interesting lecture on 'Man and his mission." The speaker said she was not there for a scientific discussion, but to demonstrate plain, practical truths. The plainest truth she had to offer was the efficacy of love. There was not love enough in the world. Love was the lever to move the world and adjust all its machinery to harmonious order. She used the word love in its scriptural sense, and it meant charity of the deepest, broadest and most unselfish character. Mrs. Davis concluded her lecture with an exortation to each person present to open their souls to the divine influx of love, that man might become better and nobler. Mrs. E. C. Opie, a lately developed trance speaker, and a member of the Society followed, and gave a short address, which was enthusiastically received by the audience. This lady's control possessed the charm of strong magnetic attraction. His utterances are glowing and eloquent, and when spiced with a little seasonable wit are irresistible. Mrs. Opie delivered a lecture before the society on the Sunday previous, which was her initial effort and pleased her audience greatly. She has appeared in public twice only, and her extraordinary success proves the careful and judicious training of her spiritual guides. Mrs. Belle Lockwood—a member of the well-known family of mediums, and who has also made rapid progress in spiritual development—followed Mrs. Opie with a few well-timed remarks. Music interspersed the exercises and lent its pleasant charm to the harmonious conditions that prevailed. One of the pleasant features of the day was the reading of a beautiful letter signed "a constant a tendant," and addressed to the president, complimenting him upon the development of inspirational talent among the members of the society, and predicting such a succession to the lecture field from our local mediums as would increase the usefulness and possibilities of the society for the future.

Mrs. Thomas, in a brief and earnest address, dwelt upon the metaphysical relations of the soul and spirit. This lady's control is keen, analytical and profound, and handles subjects with a dignity and gravity that commands the deep attention of his hearers.

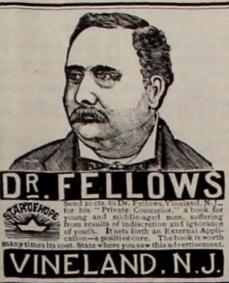

The society has entered upon its fourth year under much more favorable auspices, and with a hopeful outlook for the future. Among the contemplated changes this fall is a removal to the western part of the city, a change in in its scriptural sense, and it meant charity of the deepest, broadest and most unselfish

SPIRIT MESSAGES me to be in, but here I am and if any one Given through the Mediumship of Henry H. Warner, Cincinnati, Ohio, by the Guides, Waubenekuhn and Watonowan, Wednesday, June 12, 1889.

INVOCATION

Infinite and loving Father and Mother unto us a grander inspiration than we have yet received, that we may be enabled to reach out to the sorrowing ones of earth aspirations of our souls ever be lifted to the highest and best in life, that a true inspiration may be granted unto us. We beones who have passed on before, whispering unto us of that life and we thank thee, it is so. Keep us and guide us aright for the sake of humanity and truth. Amen.

JOHN CHAAPEL.

My dear nephew: Your desire for a fuller communication than the other has reached me and I am going to say a few words to you on the general lines of thought this morning. I have much to say to you that cannot be said in a letter like this, but shall write to you in a few days. I have outgrown the conditions which forced me into spirit life, and am endeavoring to keep step to the march of progress, and to look after my friends both here and in earth life and desire to aid them all to rise to a grander knowledge of the truths of immortal life. The years of life I know have borne much bitter fruit for you, but in the ripening of your life there has been given one to you who will truly be a helpmate unto you. I mean Velma, your noble wife. Cherish her with the deepest and purest affection, until we shall call you home. Tell Velma, Mary and Louise are here and send her their love.

MONO DEWOLF,

Beloved wife of Robert D. Smith, of consumption, is the record they made when I passed away from earth. Once before have I tried to manifest unto my friends, and I should not have been able to gather here to-day if it had not been for Mrs. Baldwin, who says she is going to say a few words to the friends. There are many of the Sterling people here to-day and some of them will speak for themselvee. I have outgrown those terrible conditions and am in happiness over here, but I want the dear husband I lett behind to know that Mono still lives and loves and is often near him. There is no death, Robert; it is only a birth to a higher life.

Well, I don't suppose that many of my friends ever expected to hear from Father Liph Worthington again, but as so many of my town-folk come here I thought I had nothing better to do than to say a few words for myself, and let the friends know all the dear ones. I was a little over seventy two years old when I passed away from my home in Sterling, Illinois.

Yes; I helped Mono to come, and now I joy they give to their friends by recognizno stagnation here in idleness, but all is to you they rejoice, even more than you. progression toward a higher development of the soul. My own work lies among those is made because of conditions that have of the lower spheres who are in darkness, been thrown upon our medium. That rethus acting as a missionary, and helping quest is a demand rather, for you make demyself to grow as well as the others. The world need be neither dark nor cold if we allowed the same privilege; therefore, we look at it in the right way. I can say no more now, so farewell.

JACOB ESHLEMAN.

Ah, Jacob, my son, it is with pleasure I come to you this morning to let you know that I come often to you and the children. Tell the good mother I have not forgotten her but love her with a love that is only intensified by my freedom from earthly clogs. Well, I remember the day she and I joined hands for the journey of life in the old Mennonite Church among the Pennsylvania hills. Thy good wife is with me and we send you all a blessing.

WILLIAM KCPP.

I was only a little lad when I passed away from earth-life, and now a young man, I come back to my darling mother and sisters, to tell them that Willie still lives and comes often to the home on Liberty street, and with me are Cousins Fred and George Lang, and we say to you all keep on in your work and do not be discouraged because the work is slow and does not give great results all at once. We will help you to accomplish all we can. The time is short and so mother, good-bye.

I was known in France, as Marquis De Bellevue, and I have a grand-daughter living in Cincinnati, Ohio, and to her I want to say that everything is now waiting for work is going on for you more strongly but in a quieter way. Fear not ma chee, the Lientenant and myself shall soon be able to give thee the information thou desirest Gaspard and Pierre greet thee with many loving words and blessings.

CHARLES BARNES.

has forgotten "jolly, old Dr. Barnes," of Mecca, Ohio, I shall try and refresh their memory a little. I was one of the "ancient land-marks" there. If Dr. Barnes wasn't in his pew in the old Free-Will Baptist church on the corner, something terrible was going to happen. The parson and I Nature, into thy loving care we commend our souls, asking that thou wouldst grant that the soul didn't amount to much without a good body to re-inforce it. Well, I have found a place at last, where I don't and help them to feel that life has indeed have to turn up at all hours of the night or not been lived in vain. May we ever be day, in all kinds of weather; but I am not guided by love and wisdom, and may the idle by any means, and I want the dear ones at home to know that their father is not dead but that he comes often to the hold on every side the evidences of eternal home in Mecca, and to Warren to the house life, and we hear the voices of our loved on the hill. You may say I have a son Charles and daughter Alice living in Mecca, Trumbull county, Ohio, and my other son, Capt. John Barnes, lives at Warren, the county seat.

MRS. LOUISE CARTER.

I was unable to say much to you, John, last evening, on account of the latences of the hour and the difficulty I had in obtaining control, but this morning, through the kindness of the guides, I am able to speak to the medium myself, and thus can reach you more at length. Oh, how thankful I am that you have been enabled to hear and see the loved ones, who have passed on before you. Immortality is something more than a mere hope; something more than an airy fancy to be lightly passed as a matter for idle speculation; it is a proven fact; a grand incentive to faithful work; to a higher development of the soul powers within you. The work that we have promised you shall be accomplished and you shall rejoice in its fulfilment. The lameness will leave you soon and you will be enabled to see better results from your efforts. Laura, my dear sister, so I shall call you though not by any earth tie, to you I bring a bouquet of flowers; heart's-ease and half-opened red and white roses. I thank you for what you have done, and are doing for John and I shall try to help you from this side of life. Good-bye, with the deepest love to you all.

WAUBENERUHN.

From the spirit wigwam, the chief sends many blessings to the friends who read his words and he wants them to know that he is glad he can voice the thoughts that the angel loved ones bring to us for you. I am joined in this message by Watonowan, and to all we send these words of greeting. We are endeavoring to cultivate the powers of our instrument day by day, and we hope to do better work each time, the messages growing in strength and clearness. We desire to have it understood that any spirit, who comes to us in good-faith, whether that spirit is known or unknown to the medium, will be granted the privilege of communicating to their loved ones in earth life the sympathy and love they have for the ones that I am not dead by any means. Shall they left behind. The substance of the message is what gives the burden of proof as to the spiritual origin of the message. We are glad when we are able to give a test and we would like to have those who receive a message through our means be as prompt in recognition as though we were shall say a 'ew words to the friends. Thank speaking to you face to face. Every truthyou very much, Mr. Seely for recognizing ful recognition adds to the power of your my message. I wish people could know the friends to communicate to you truthful messages. The day of test-hunting is over, ing them. There is no life over here that is or should be, and the aim of the spiritso far advanced as to have lost all desire of world, or that portion which comes unbeing recognized by their loved ones in der our observation, is to make their comearth life. Life, as I have found it in the munication instructive, and thus beneficial realms of spirit, is full of beauty. There is but if at the same time they can give tests

We have here a request to make, and it mands of us, and we believe we should be ask in all kindliness, that you do not write to our medium requesting communications from definite or indefinite friends, but leave him untrammeled, free to give whatever may come. Let your communications be the voluntary offering on the part of your friends, and you will be much better pleased as the probabilities are that it will be nearer right, and you can truthfully say to your neighbor there is a test I received from an entire stranger. We endeavor to be honest and painstaking in our work, but we shall never ask a spirit whether he is a relative, or acquaintance of the medium, or whether the earth friends are known to him, but if their messages are common sense and appear to contain an element of truth or love, the message will be given. The days of sentimental Spiritualism are at an end, and we demand truth from you as well as you demand the same from us. To those who have written concerning messages, we say that if your friends present themselves we will endeavor to transmit their messages as they are given to us. To those who have written concerning discrepancies, we say we will investigate when a suitable opportunity is given, for the medium's time is not his own nor can we be sure of controlling him whenever we choose, except on Wednesdays, and not always with the same force then. We ask of you only your sym-pathy and your acknowledgement of that which is true. Honest critics are always awhile only apparently, while in reality the welcome, but chronic fraud-yellers and work is going on for you more strongly but "I-have-a-mission-to-reform-and-exposeeverybody—but-myself" people will obtain no aid or comfort in this quarter. May light and knowledge be added to us all.

'Echoes from an Angel's Lyre." New and Beautiful Songs, with Music and Chorus, in Book Form, by the Well-known Composer, C. P. LONGLEY.

This book is nicely gotten up, printed on fine paper, sheet music size, neatly bound in boards, and is embellished by a finely executed title page, the symbolical picture of which was depicted to Mr. Longley by his friend, the late Dr. S. B. Brittain, many years ago. The work contains twelve choice and original songs, three only of which have before appeared in print. Its contents are as follows:

only a thin veil between us, Mother's love purest and best.
Open those pearly gates of light.
They'll welcome us home to-morrow. All are waiting over there. On the mountains of light.

In heaven we'll know our own. Glad that we're living here to-day.! We'll all meet again in the morning land.

We'll all meet sgain in the morning land. The angel kisseth me,
We'll all be gathered home.
The book is now on sale at this office, and besides being a choice and appropriate work for the parior of every singing person in the land, will be found a suitable gift for friends.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES Of the First Society of Spiritualists of Topeka, Kansas.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

Defined in general terms it implies the possibility and certainty of a present conscious intercourse with the inhabitants of the spirit world. In a broader sense Spiritualism is a science, a philosophy and a religion, appealing to the sensuous perceptions through the manifestations and materializations of mediumship to the reason through a calm, cultured judgment, and to the soul's religious affection through and by inspiring growth and purity of life. It is not new in this world; the records of India and Egypt, the old and new testaments abound in descriptions of angel appearings and spiritual manifestations, in previsions, dreams and trance; in oracles, prophecies, visions and healing, yet to genuine spiritual manifestations, therefore are not only in perfect accord with the marvels in the New Testament, but they are the greater works promised by Jesus to the living witnesses of immortality.

Spiritualists, therefore, believe in the infinite presence, the divine energy, one living and true God, wisdom and love, and upon the pulsing bosom of this wisdom is the soul's rest forever. Believe in Jesus as a teacher and medium, and as evidence in our day, by healing the sick and restoring the deformed to a normal condition through the laying on of hands. Believe in repentance as implying sorrow for wrong doing, and reformation; but in no way does it promise escape from the legitimate consequences of violated law, nature holding the golden scales of justice; obey and enjoy; transgress and suffer.

Believe in rewards and punishments, as links in the chain of cause and effect; retribution is inevitable in all worlds. Man as a spiritual being is a moral actor, subject to law and responsible; reaping anguish from vice and happiness from virtue. Memory, the backward-looking eye of the soul, accompanies each individual to the world of spirits, that house of many mansions. Each when leaving the mortal body gravitates by virtue of fixed law to his appropriate zone or spiritual plane of existence. The purer the life on earth the more ecstatic will be the bliss in that beautiful home land of the angels. Divine love reaches down to the lowest sphere; progress spans all worlds; angels are ever inviting those in lower spheres to come up higher; every sweet thought breathed, every generous word uttered, every charitable deed wrought and every heart beat for virtue, purity and peace, will live for-ever; live to beautify and bless. Spiritualism settles three questions of momen-

1. That man has a conscious existence

2. That all individuals commence that existence precisely as they leave this, mentally and morally, retaining their identity and memory.

This future existence is one of menprogress and spiritual unfoldment for humane intelligence. The spiritual philosophy, while undermining the false and overthrowing the Babels of bigotry and superstition, is constructive in purpose and eclectic in method; it gladly conserves the good and adopts the right and true wherever found.

Spiritualism, as interpreted by its best and superstition, revealed in a truer light the law of compensation: opened to anxious eyes a revised geography of the heav-ens, and convinced multitudes of atheists and deists of a future conscious existence. Unbarring the gates of death, it has brought the loved inhabitants of the Summerland into our cities, our homes, our chambers, permitting us to touch their shining hands and listen to the music of their voices. It has encouraged the desponding, comforted the sick, and with the tender hand of sympathy brushed away the mourner's tears. Kindling in believing souls the loftiest endeavors, the broadest tolerance, noblest charity and the warmest heart fellowship. Its prayers are good deeds; its music the sweet breathing of guardian angels; its idea, a pure life of brotherly love, and its temple the measureless universe of God.

Superstitious Chinese. The Chinese are full of superstitions, and many of them firmly believe that the foreigners make medicines out of human beings. The massacre at Tien-Tsin in 1870, in which twenty foreigners were killed, and among them a number of French nuns, was caused by the reports that the sisters were killing children to get their hearts and eyes for medical purposes, and the trouble in Corea last spring was caused by the circulation of the stories that the missionaries were grinding up children's bones to make medicine. This report was started by the Chinese, and the latest attempt of the kind I find to-day here at Shanghai. It appears in a trimonthly illustrated magazine which the Chinese publish, and which sells for five cents a copy. This contains a full description of how the foreigners make their medicine, with ghastly illustrations of the severed trunks and the cut up limbs of human beings. In one cut men in Ameri-can clothes are bending over great furnaces in which the heads and legs of men are boiling, and beside which great baskets and tubs of cut-up humans lie. The men are stirring the steaming mass and the picture makes one think of the witches' aldron in "Macbeth." In another cut is nown the machinery for the grinding up of the bones and flesh. A dozen old seletors lie upon the floor, and a man with a shovel puts the ghastly mass upon the solve for weighing. In another room th a shovel puts the ghastly mass upon scales for weighing. In another room medicine is packed up to be sent away, it young ladies in American dress with terfalls and French heels are busy at it, asked the manager of the magazine ether he believed in such stuff, and he lied that he did not know, and asked if was not really true. — Letter from angles.

Written for The Better Way. FACTS AND TRUTHS.

Non-essential stories, or novel reading, may be easy and interesting to those whose back-brain, or the social faculties. have the ascendency; but the constant reading of such will never give the human mind a desire for scientific, or philosophical research. The world's true advancement depends most upon deep reflection, and the exercise of both man's and woman's highest and best reason, and in their grand conclusions which may have required weeks and months and years of constant study to develop and bring out and make the application for human good. In the realm of nature there ever has and ever will exist eternal principles. To learn these it becomes necessary, that we be taught to think. In the investigation of our spiritual philosophy, or the study of mental science, the intuitional as well as the rational and reflective faculties must be broug Z into useful action before profound discoveries can be made. The great field of spiritual science is co-extensive with Deity; hence, it can never be enclosed or protected by any sectarian or individual monopolizing fence.

To give utterance to facts in the "long ago" was very dangerous to human life. To what fact did Bruno give utterance for which he was chained to an iron stake and burned by order of a Christian priesthood in Italy? It was simply this. That the common sense of mankind should realize that God and nature are inseperably con-

Since then Theodore Parker of Boston was pronounced an infidel for simply uttering a corresponding fact, saying that "God is just as much everywhere as anywhere."

Mrs. Helen Wilmans-not a Christian but a Mental Scientist (and to my mind one of the clearest and deepest female thinkers of the present age)-in speaking of God makes use of the following lan-

"I now state honestly, and without one thought of irreverance or disrespect for the conviction of others, that unless the invisible law of sex, on which all the visible phenomena called nature depends for life and motion, be God, then I know nothing of God. If God is a person then I will know it when others know it. And if there be a person who in the All seeing he will not fail to see that an honest denial of a more God like than the timidity which prompts the masses to accept the assertion without the requisite understanding to confirm it."

To say that God is All-in-all or that all is God-where lies the difference? The human understanding is growing, and I trust that ere long it will be able to com-prehend that God is but one infinite revolving wheel, of which all else are but component parts. But to fully comprehend this and ourselves as so many essential spokes in said wheel, will require a new set of teachers different from those found in our fossil Sunday schools. But let us take courage. Our spiritual philosophy by the aid of the spirit world is fast developing the right kind of teachers.

In the foregoing mental ramble we have nearly forgotten our text Facts and Truths, nad the difference. All truths may be exponents, has given free thought a new | considered as things which belong to the impetus; it has severed the bonds of fear | past, the present, and will extend into the infinite future, while facts can only relate to what has been or now is. To-morrow may be a truth, but not a fact till it comes. Another eclipse may be a truth but it must occur before it becomes a fact. Man's future immortality may be a truth, but the fact can only be realized upon its recep-

> A falsehood, or a lie, is a negation-a non-entity-non-existent. A fact is something which has or does exist. Hence, a lie must be the absence of existence, or else it might as well receive the name of fact. But let us continue to think deep and wide and high, and be assured that in the coming time, all will be well. DR. E. B. WHEELOCK. Liberal, Mo.

REVIEWS. "The Light of Egypt; or the Science of the Soul and the Stars." The author's name is not given, but the book is published by the Religio-Philosophical Publishing House of Chicago, and costs $2. It is well worth the price, for it is one of the grandest books in spiritual literature on sale to-day. To detail its contents or its merits would require columns. To speak of its deficiences would not take up much space. The author is evidently an intense thinker, a profound student and a man of culture. He displays much spiritual wisdom and gives a deal of new light on cer tain dark subjects. His higher comprehension of some things is very marked, the writer-where intuition is beclouded or shut out by too much of the human or the external man. Whether due to the interference of preconceived ideas on the subject or to prejudice is difficult to determine. However, there are many things in it that we no not comprehend as yet and therefore cannot criticize, but that they belong to the higher or deeper truths of nature and the universe is manifest by their fascinating influence-only spiritual truths having this effect, while individual opinion produces a haze while reading. On the whole though it is a great book; full of information for the occult student and can never fail to interest for a long time, because it will require several re readings to fully digest it. Some of its subjects are Soul, Spirit, Matter, Life, Sex, Karma, Mediamship, Incarnation and Reincarnation, Science of the Stars—the basic principles of the same, Refraction and distribution of solar force, Influence of the same on the human brain, Alchemy of the stars and man. Powers of the f the stars and man, Powers of the welve signs and of the planets, and con-luding with, Union of the soul and the

to come from spirits of our great men lack in grammar and spelling? Two reaspour clear water through a muddy channel communication will always bear more or less of the imprint of the medium's idiosyncracies, and sometimes, too, the message is not what the spirit said, but what the medium thought he should have said, under the circumstances. There are very few mediums who have reached that stage where they will allow a message to pass without marking it with a little of their own pet theories. When such do make their appearance, it is like drinking water from the clear springs of Upper Iowa, after a hot day's tramp, with nothing to drink but stagnant cistern water. The remedy lies in thorough education of the medium in the elements of the English language first and the other branches of learning may then be more readily acquired. But, says some one, what about our speakers, who never went to school, and who to-day stand among our very best thinkers and scholars, having received their education from their spirit guides, notably Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Mattie E. Hull? Well, we say that these and all of the same class possessed within themselves the ability to have become equally gifted by a thorough education, as they have by inspiration, and we doubt not even grander inspiration would have come to them. The faculties of reason, judgment, language, order, form, and poetry are marked phrenological characteristics of the two examples cited, combined with deep spirituality, hence spirits of the same ing type found in them the best of ml lying ready to their hand, and naturally were attracted to them.

Second; these great men in earth did not ossess the accurate command of language which their published works would lead the public to suppose they possessed. If the uninitiated public could step with me into the composing room of one of our large book concerns and see the manuscript upon the cases signed by great men, knowledge of his existance is broader and their wonder would be, not that there are so many mistakes, but that there are so few. Come a little further into this room back here, and here you will find the secret of the fine literary finish of the book. This man who sits here making strange hieroglyphics on the margins of long strips of printed matter is the proof reader, a man who goes over the work marking the errors of language, spelling, and the typographical mistakes. These great men were masters of the technical terms of their special pursuit, profound in the fine distinctions of imperfect, aorist, and perfect tenses of Greek verbs, but very ignorant of the common rules of English spelling. A large majority of the grad-uates from the colleges of America are unable to pass the examination required to obtain the lowest grade of certificate to teach in our common district schools and particularly in spelling and grammar and United States history. Then as these spirits do not receive any miraculous accession of knowledge and power on their entrance to the spirit life, but acquire it by growth and study in accordance with the laws of progression, their first communications would betray their real command of the English language.

> Answer to A. H. Nicholas Concerning Christ and his Genealogy.

My band of spirits teach that Jesus was the son of God, and our Saviour, Through him we intercede to our Father in heaven for forgiveness of our sins. We argue that Spiritualism can be found in the Bible. If we cannot believe the story of the Savior's birth, how can we believe the Bible at all? If the Bible is not to be relied upon, why accept Jesus at all? What right have we as Spiritualists to select portions of the Bible, and say we will believe this or we will not believe that? Spiritualists are taking a fearful responsibility upon themselves. What right have we to question theway and means the Lord takes to carry out his work? Why not believe that the Lord is all-powerful, that with him all things are possible? If we can believe that Jesus did perform the miracles (which it is claimed he did perform) why not believe also that he was of divine birth? Could mortal man have performed the miracles which he is said to have performed? I am aware that it is claimed that some mediums can help restore health, but miracles are not performed. I can though a little difficult to comprehend at believe that Jesus must have been a spirit times where individual feelings control and at times palpable to the touch. The disappearence from the sepulcher, his appearing and disappearing at different times and places make it appear so to me.

Can we, as Spiritualists, afford to make so serious a mistake, as to deny the Son of God? And that brings the thought of Peter, the best beloved deciple. Christ said. Before the cock crow twice thou shalt deny me thrice, Peter went out and wept bitterly. Spiritualists I feel are the best beloved.

Why does Spiritualism lack means to support it? I fear that the answer is too plainly to be seen, I fear that the cause, so dear to my heart, will not prosper as it should, because the dear Christ's birth is made to appear a defilement. Our Father in heaven can do all things. All good may prosper if done in his name.

MORNING LECTURE.

The morning services were well attended by an appreciative audience, that applauded frequently the brilliant sallies made by the guides in their discussion of the questions presented by the audience. The manner in which the questions were considered was certainly eloquent and at the same time directly to the point. Many questions were presented and a brief outline is herewith given of one of the important questions. The question was asked in regard to mediums sitting together for development. The guide thought that as a rule those seeking to develop mediumship should sit alone; that is at home, and not subject themselves to the conflicting influences of a promiscuous developing circle. It would be injurious to persons of a delicate and retiring nature, but still there were cases never be of more than twelve persons, and should always meet at the same time and place and be composed of the same members. Two mediums, who were sitting for opposite phases of mediumship, one mental and the other physical, would be benefitted by sitting together for development, otherwise not, because the forces would act more in unison.

The controls now changed and Sunbeam took control of the medium and after a few remarks proceeded to give TESTS.

so rampant at the present time, both in SOCIETY OF UNION SPIRITUALISTS the churches and among Spiritualists, and at the same time it was a call to stand firm at the post of duty; a call to the highest within man to be rounded out and unfolded to its full power and beauty. The discourse was a clear and concise statement of the position that should be assumed by Spiritualists in regard to so-called exposures. The position was taken by the guide that no one had a right to test a medium that could not pass the same examination as to honesty, purity, etc. The audience listened with a great amount of pleasure as was evinced by the frequent and hearty applause. The feature of the evening, however, was the

The First New Spiritual Church holds a developing circle, every Thursday, 7:30 p. m., at 432 West Seventh street. Admission, 10 cents.

There is need of more thorough work in regard to the Lyceum. More scholars, more teachers who will be present

Miss Emma J. Nickerson, a talented speaker and medium from Boston, will lecture at the morning service on Sun-day and will be followed by Mr. Emerson with tests.

The lecture given by J. Clegg Wright at the Hall, on Wednesday evening, June 12, was a magnificent discourse, some of you are asikng: "Do they have gold-headed canes over there?" Well, why not? Can't you believe that as Mr. Wright and Mr. Emerson will occupy the platform on Wednesday evening, June 26. Admission 10 cents.

Miss Jennie B. Hagan has been recently and is now giving about four lectures a week. On the 11th and 12th she was at Hillsboro Bridge, N. H., and from the 17th to the 21st was on a visit to her home. On the 23d and 30th she speaks at Washington, N. H. Between the latter dates she will go on a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Mary Jones, but expects to be busy with camp work after this vacation. At the camp she will represent The BETTER WAY and take subscription for the same.

Montreal, Canada. Wandering over the country, the initerant Spiritualist sees much to instruct him in the ways of men. Whether he becomes edifled in the manner that shall conduce to his better unfoldment, is quite another item to consider. To come in contact with the various forces of life may broaden his views and enlarge his understanding-but is not calculated to spiritualize his mental forces. The world's people are crude everywhere. Animal instincts crop out even amongst the classical. The vox populi intones joy in the sports of base ball, horse and boat racing, municate before but now I have succeeded and mother I want you to know ing came and gave a message that was more than is derived from education, arts or religion. Wealth and power are better emoluments than growth of mind and spirit. Selfishness dominates all grades of peoplethe spiritual world not excepted. A personal ambition seems to achieve the highest known human results-no matter whether applied to the life physical or spiritual. Mediums and spirits are inspired by a worthy emulation to achieve place, popularity and usefulness. Humanity constitutes a busy hive-and so do spirits. Activity and ambition do not die. Why, then, grow weary of effort? Yet we do often. There is no escape from responsibility, nor from the crosses in life. Sooner or later we achieve, but not without toil. We hope to be in spirit life what opportunity denies us on earth-but over there we must need again commence and pursue our efforts in order to receive. It is the faint-hearted only who grows weary. Our good cause of Spiritualism needs devo and pursue our efforts in order to receive. It is the faint-hearted only who grows weary. Our good cause of Spiritualism needs devotion now as greatly as ever; it needs the spirit of organized effort; it needs the harmonizing of purposes—and above all it needs the spiritualizing of societies and officers thereof. Our organic efforts are run upon a money basis more than for mental and spiritual growth. The sensational worker who can most increase the coffers is the best medium. The platform is nedged about with the magnetism of barter and sale of talents. The public are worth only for what they bring so much a head. The soul-growth has lost so much in their worldliness. Are we progressing in the spiritualization of the people? Are we doing the best we can? Are the Spiritualists truly co-operating with the spirits? These are applicable questions—and the asker thereof is not prepared to reply Wife and self enjoyed very much our visit to Boston. We found an open sesame at each society, and were able to study the status of labor at the Hup. The cause is maintained there by the inevitable "door fee"—and in the many halls for the spiritual spectator to obtain test services from a number of mediums in lieu of being advertised for private sittings. Here in Montreal we find an earnest element at work, but against much public prejudice. The city is full of churches—the major part being Catholic.

Our friends here have leased a small hall, and with Bro. Kneeshaw as regular speaker are doing a quiet work. We are holding three night meetings each week, and are having quite large attendance.

Quite a commotion has been stirred up in Canada over the grant to the Jesuits of $40,000 in lieu of claims for some property owned by the ancient society, but long since passed into government hands. The money was made subject to the Pope's disbursement for higher education. The Protestepts are saying strong things and are mad over getting only $60,000 of the slice. The war is on and no telling what will be the result. The daily press is

Friendship.

Much has been said in praise and verse concerning this little word. But pens fail, for hearts are the true interpreters of the emotions. How shall we know this royal gift of life? 'Tis a buried treasure in a hidden mine; we must dig for it and measure our strength by another's need. "This above all to thine own self be true; Learn to live well, that thou mayst die so

Has the purple of state fallen upon your shoulders? Are the claims of other's lives unheeded and kindred forgotten? Ah! friendship depends not upon wealth nor estate; a crust is sweetened when shared with another. "The least flower with a brimming cup may stand and share its dewdrop with another man." Dull not thy patience with itching servitude. Stead thou afflictions need, thou shalt not ack a friend. He that gives little taketh much. The bonds of use tie us to strange bedfellows. But true friendship survives the wreck of time, for, like hope, it is immortal. EMMA J. NICKERSON.
